

GIANTS OF INIQUITY

A SAN FRANCISCO OMEN

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Jason Covington is a modern allegorist whose writing examines American cultural and political extremism. Covington earned a Bachelor's degree in creative writing at Pepperdine University and later a Master's degree in literature from Southern Illinois University at Carbondale. Covington has taught writing at eight colleges and universities since 1993.

Covington grew up in Silicon Valley when computer technology was in its infancy when his dad worked for Apple Computer, pre-IPO. Covington has had his own successful career working in technology. His interest in spiritual phenomena, combined with his observations about living in San Francisco, led to the epic tale, Giants of Iniquity: a San Francisco Omen. Covington has previously published another novel, American BeheMouth, another allegory about America and what it has become.

Covington's prose is light and easy to read, full of humor and insight. Covington hopes the questions he raises will give us self-revelation for positive change and not backward steps toward regurgitated totalitarian solutions.

Covington has often been a featured speaker at technology conferences and has a fun and entertaining style. His discerning grip of modern American social issues make for great interviews and feature articles.
